

Unemployment Rate To Rise Says President

By FRANK CORMIER

CHICAGO (AP) — President Kennedy said today that even without a recession the unemployment rate will climb "steadily and swiftly" to 7 per cent "unless we step up our rate of growth."

Kennedy spoke of this disturbing prospect in a speech for a civic luncheon to follow his dedication of O'Hare International Airport—the world's busiest airport.

In talking bluntly about the darkening employment outlook Kennedy appealed for approval of his proposed three-year tax cut of $10.3 billion—the first and most necessary step, he said, toward solving the employment problem.

Kennedy said his administration's "No. 1 domestic concern" is jobs "for the tidal wave of men and women now flooding our labor market." He said it stems from a combination of the revolution in agriculture, the flood of postwar babies reaching job-seeking age, and labor-saving automation.

"Unless we step up our rate of growth—unless we create a supply of jobs that is more equal to the demand—our rate of unemployment will steadily and swiftly climb to the recession levels of 7 per cent, even without a recession," he said.

A jobless rate of 7 per cent would compare with the February level of 6.1 per cent, the highest in more than a year.

In another talk, for dedication ceremonies at the sprawling airport which last year handled 13.5 million travelers, Kennedy said the United States "intends to be a leader in the supersonic age" and develop airlines that will travel three times the speed of sound, or about 2,200 miles an hour.

Once that is accomplished, he said, it will be a smaller world. "Let us also see to it that is a better world," he said, "A more just and peaceful world, a more promising world for our children and for their children after them."

In his luncheon address Kennedy spotlighted just one of the obstacles, unemployment, to be overcome in creating a more promising world.

The President noted, for example, that unemployed Americans last year lost one billion work days—"equivalent to shutting down the entire country with no production, no services, and no pay for over three weeks."

While saying "This nation can do better than that," he emphasized the ominous possibility of doing much worse unless effective counter measures are adopted. "Above all," he said, "We need to release the brake of wartime tax rates which are now holding down growth at the very time we need more growth to create more jobs."

He said a $10.3 billion tax cut would "be multiplied many times in new markets, new equipment, new jobs, new payrolls, and then still more consumption and investment."

State Weather Sharp and Crisp

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sharp, crisp weather moved into Arkansas this morning, pushed by a large high pressure area reaching from the Rocky mountains to the Atlantic.

As the high moves eastward winds are expected to gradually switch to the south causing a warming trend that will continue over the weekend and into next week, the Weather Bureau said.

Early morning temperatures dropped below freezing in the northern portion of the state.

Overnight lows ranged from a 21 at Fayetteville and 29 at Walnut Ridge to 32 at Little Rock to 39 at Pine Bluff and 40 at Texarkana.

Temperatures are expected to range 6 to 12 degrees above normal over the weekend with normal highs of 59 in the northern portion of the state to 71 in the southern portion. Normal lows range from 38 north to 47 south.

Widely scattered showers are expected to bring less than one quarter inch of rain over the weekend.

Weather

Partly cloudy and warmer today and tonight.

Helena to Observe Civil War Battle

HELENA, Ark. (AP)—The centennial observance of the Civil War Battle of Helena will be conducted this year by the newly reactivated Helena Centennial Association Inc.

The association was reorganized Thursday at a meeting of representatives of civil, fraternal and social groups in Helena and West Helena.

The Arkansas Civil War Commission has approved a grant of $2,000 for markers to commemorate the battle, fought July 4, 1863 when Confederate forces tried to retake the city in an effort to protect the Mississippi River against federal troops being sent to Vicksburg.

The association was originally formed in 1956 to conduct the centennial observance of the city's founding.

W. B. Stratton Jr., was elected chairman of the new group, John King Jr. vice chairman and Mrs. Fred Faust Sr. treasurer.

The association will select six historical sites for placement of markers.

Bidault Gives a Very Tragic Impression

An AP News Analysis By RICHARD O'REGAN

STEINEBACH, Germany (AP)—Georges Bidault gives the impression of a tragic, hunted exile with little prospect except political oblivion.

He is wanted by the French government and unwanted by his unwilling protectors in Germany. Bidault faces three choices within a few days. None of them gives him much hope of regaining the stature he once had as a distinguished French leader.

He can remain in Germany and give up political activity against his former friend and present enemy, Charles de Gaulle. If he stays, he will have to abandon in fact—even if not in name—the leadership he claims to have over the movement to overthrow De Gaulle.

He can allow himself to be deported from Germany. In this case, he may, like certain members of the terrorist French Secret Army, find himself wandering from country to country, seeking a refuge where he might operate in the open against his adversary.

Or he can decide to try to escape German police, flee Germany, and resume his clandestine wanderings about Europe. He would have to enter another country illegally and would be hunted by French secret agents.

Bidault says he leads the Council of National Resistance, an organization regarded as the political arm of the secret army which has tried to assassinate De Gaulle.

He is charged in France with being a member of a clandestine organization which has been ordered dissolved because it is plotting against the security of the state. This is not a capital offense. He has not been accused of trying to kill De Gaulle, a crime punishable by death.

Bidault has been under German police guard since he was discovered 12 days ago living with two German journalists in a hilltop villa in this Bavarian village.

He has had no rendezvous with anybody not allowed by the police.

If there still are CNR or secret army men in Bavaria, they apparently have had no direct contact with Bidault since he was found.

Correspondents who have seen Bidault here get the impression that he may have become only a figurehead in the organizations.

Bidault is a former premier and a former foreign minister of France. He headed the wartime resistance against the Nazis while De Gaulle was out of the country. As such, he still has appeal to numerous Frenchmen.

But active leadership of the CNR may have passed elsewhere—perhaps to Jacques Soustelle, another former minister in De Gaulle's government, who is reported hiding in Portugal. Soustelle is a younger, more energetic man.

The Bavarian government says a final decision on Bidault will come this weekend or early next week.

Vocational Nurses to Graduate on Sunday

Gads, Member of Parliament Gets Involved

By HAL COOPER

LONDON (AP)—War Minister John Profumo, 48, told the House of Commons today he had been friendly with a good-time girl whose disappearance has touched off a nationwide wave of gossip.

But he said he had not seen her in more than 14 months and knew nothing of her present whereabouts.

Labor members of Commons demanded Thursday night that the government deny—or open an inquiry into—rumors that a leading government minister was involved with Christine Keeler, 20, who twice has failed to appear as a witness in a shooting case.

One Laborite, Barbara Castle, said there were rumors highly placed persons were responsible for hiding Christine, whom she termed "the missing call girl."

"I understand my name has been connected with rumors about her disappearance," Profumo told Commons today.

"Any suggestion that I was in any way connected with or responsible for her absence at the trial at the Old Bailey is wholly and completely untrue."

The name of the minister had not been mentioned in the exchange between the Laborites and the Conservative government spokesman, Home Secretary Henry Brooke.

Profumo said he was prompted to make his statement today because of allegations that "people in high places might have been responsible for concealing information concerning the disappearance of a witness and the perversion of justice."

The minister said he last saw Miss Keeler in December 1961. Watching from the gallery as Profumo made his statement was his wife, Valerie Hobson, a noted British stage and screen actress.

Profumo said he and his wife met Miss Keeler at a house party at Cliveden, home of Viscount Astor, son of American-born Lady Astor.

Among the others at Cliveden at the time he said were Dr. Stephen Ward, an osteopath.

"Between July and December 1961, I met Miss Keeler on about half a dozen occasions at Dr. Ward's flat," Profumo said.

"Miss Keeler and I were on friendly terms. There was no impropriety whatever of any kind in our acquaintanceship."

Christine's discarded Jamaican boy friend, John Edgarcombe, 30, tried in January to shoot his way into the apartment she shared with a girl friend.

Intentional Poisoning Rare But Accidental Poisoning Is a Common Occurrence

By MARY ANITA LASETER

This has been Poison Prevention Week. At first glance at that statement you may be inclined to shrug your shoulders in a well-thought-out-says-to-me attitude.

Granted that intentional poisoning is rare outside of an Alfred Hitchcock show, but the accidental version is all too common an occurrence. In an effort to call to the attention of the citizens of Arkansas the potential hazards of accidental poisoning, the State Board of Health sent out information to every county in Arkansas concerning this very real danger.

As is the case of most accidental disasters, the biggest culprits are carelessness and ignorance. The result is: every year approximately 500 children under five years of age die of accidental poisoning. Many more become ill but are saved with a total of 500,000 children involved every year. Those are a lot of children, and they aren't always "the other fellows."

The four classes of products most involved are (1) internal medicines, particularly aspirins, (2) cleaning and polishing agents, (3) pesticides, and (4) petroleum distillate products, like kerosene, lighter fluid, some furniture polishes and waxes.

Deaths have been known to occur when adults have stored toxic products in other than their customary storage place or in something besides their original containers. In addition to these two things, there is also the necessity of the proper discarding of potentially toxic materials. If there is a bottle or a can with a little bit of something which could be dangerous if taken internally, be sure the container isn't left in a waste paper basket where a child could get it. Chances are it will be found by a little one you love and most of them will eat or drink anything you don't offer to them. The results could be disastrous or even deadly.

You may be as surprised as I to learn that ingestion is not the only method of inducing accidental poisoning. Some substances can be absorbed through the skin in lethal amounts. Several fatalities have been reported to the Public Health Service where children have crawled through areas on which highly toxic insecticides have been spilled.

In one case, a four-year-old boy was playing on his father's pickup truck. Nothing unusual about that. But it seems that about two years previously, a bag containing an insecticide had been stored there and some of the powder had leaked out. Even after all this time, the child's contact with the chemical was severe enough to produce an extremely serious reaction. Fortunately, in this case, the child recovered.

What can be done to reduce the number of accidental poisonings?

1. Always keep household products and medicines out of reach and out of sight of children.
2. Store medicines separately from other household products and keep them in their original containers.
3. Be sure that all products are properly labeled, and read the label before using.
4. Always turn the light on when giving or taking medicine.
5. Since children tend to imitate adults, avoid taking medications in their presence.
6. Refer to medicines by their proper names. They are not candies.
7. Clean out the medicine cabinet periodically. Get rid of old medicines by flushing them down the drain, rinsing the container in water and then discarding it.

Spirits High in Costa Rica After Visit

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP)—The "Welcome Kennedy" banners came down today but spirits remained high as Costa Ricans heaped praise on the American President they mobbed and cheered throughout his three-day stay here.

Kennedy's solidarity meeting with six Central American presidents ended Wednesday much as it had begun. A wildly enthusiastic crowd flattened barriers and swept guards aside to give him a rousing sendoff.

Costa Ricans still basked in the lingering glow of the spotlight which had given them a fresh shot of pride in being Central American.

That perhaps was one of the purposes of Kennedy's visit—to turn attention to the tiny coffee and banana republics that connect North and South America, to make the two continents aware of their existence, their problems and what his Alliance for Progress is trying to do to help them.

That, and to make the continents aware that Panama, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, Nicaragua and Costa Rica side with the United States against Cuba's Communist regime as strongly as any other countries in the hemisphere.

In a country that has no army, whose police are seldom forced to deal with disorder, U.S. Secret Service men were "driven nuts" by the festive crowds that broke through barriers repeatedly and swarmed around Kennedy.

Although Latin-American universities are traditionally leftist storm centers, there were only cheers for Kennedy at the University of Costa Rica.

Members of the student federation patrolled the campus night and day for a week before Kennedy's visit to make sure no Communist signs or anti-Kennedy remarks were painted on buildings.

4.9 Million Chicks Started

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Arkansas producers started 4,982,000 broiler chicks during the week ended March 16, the Crop Reporting Service estimated today.

This is five per cent above the figure for the previous week. Of the total placements in the state, 4,239,000 chicks were hatched in Arkansas and 743,000 came from other states.

There were 290,000 broiler chicks shipped out of Arkansas during the week. The estimated total of 6.91 million eggs set for broiler-type chicks in Arkansas during the week was four per cent above the previous week.

Volcano Takes 1,264 Lives; Many Missing

By KARSTEN PRAGER

DENPASAR, Bali (AP)—An urgent request for rice and helicopters went out from this capital today in a desperate effort to save starving villagers isolated by a five-day deluge of lava.

The death toll from the eruption of sacred Agung volcano stood at 1,264. The governor of Bali said he expected it to rise to at least 1,500, since many persons are missing and feared dead.

More than 5,000 people were reported isolated without food in the town of Karangasem, southeast of the smoldering volcano that had been listed in tourist books as inactive.

Helicopters were requested from military authorities in East Java to ferry out people stranded in pockets surrounded by hot lava streams.

But there was no indication here, whether or when the appeals could be met.

Bali's Governor Anak Agung Sutedja told the Associated Press thousands of Balinese who lost homes in the eruption may have to leave this lovely island forever.

He said 75,000 people, mostly farmers, have lost all they possessed. Another 65,000 to be evacuated as soon as possible may also become homeless.

Not a touch of green remained in the northeast village of Bekasah, five miles from the top of the 10,306-foot volcano which the Balinese believe is the home of the gods. Trees were stripped of leaves, branches caked white with volcanic dust. Terraced rice paddies lay under a smooth gray surface of brimstone.

A few people, refusing to be evacuated, silently cleared small garden plots of rocks and dug up soil in which all plants have died.

Most of the casualties were suffered during the initial eruption Sunday morning when a rain of hot ash and long tongues of lava killed hundreds.

The governor said the fiery ashes came down like a curse from Agung, and victims were roasting alive as they knelt to pray to the gods of the volcano. "The temperature of the ashes was 230 degrees."

Cotton Men Gets Tests of Product

Approximately 180 cotton farmers in Hempstead County submitted samples from 2,351 bales of cotton for classification to the Little Rock Classing Office, Agricultural Marketing Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture, during the past season. All cotton farmers in Hempstead County are members of the Hempstead County Cotton Improvement Association. L. F. Hampton is designated as Group Representative.

A free classification of each bale produced is provided for members of this association. All gins in Hempstead County made arrangements for sampling cotton for producer - members of the Group. In addition to the free classification service, market news information was furnished the newspaper and radio station in Hempstead County each week.

Market news and price information were supplied by the Little Rock Classing Office to aid local farmers in marketing their cotton.

The value of cotton and cotton by-products produced by Hempstead County farmers during the 1962-63 season was approximately $47,000.

White Strict Low Middling grade accounted for a majority of gins in Arkansas this past season. The predominant staple lengths were 1 and 1-3/4 and 1-1/2 inches.

Farmers received approximately $16 per ton for cottonseed.

Source Says Mac Cried In TFX Hearing

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Senate source says Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, stung by a belief his integrity was being questioned in the investigation of the TFX warplane contract, wept at a closed hearing Thursday and told senators:

"My son is asking, 'When is my father going to be proved an honest man?'"

A Defense Department spokesman, brushed off as nonsense the report that McNamara had cried. He said that when the secretary was told about it, McNamara remarked he was "saving up his tears for the individual who made up the story."

The Senate source, who declined to be quoted by name, told a newsman McNamara had sobbed as he protested his integrity was being unjustly questioned and that his family had been deeply hurt by publicity surrounding the hearings.

The source said tears streamed down the secretary's cheeks when he brought up his son's question. The Defense Department had no comment on McNamara's reported allusion to his son.

McNamara's son, Robert Craig is 13. He also has two daughters, Elisabeth, 21, and Kathleen, 18.

The TFX hearings—crackling with bitter charges between the Pentagon and the Senate investigating subcommittee—have all been held behind closed doors.

Transcripts of the testimony have been made public after being stripped of classified information by military censors.

McNamara's testimony of Thursday was expected to be released yesterday.

McNamara's testimony of Thursday was expected to be released Friday but the subcommittee held it back, although it did make public a partial transcript of testimony Thursday by Deputy Secretary of Defense Roswell L. Gilpatric.

Subcommittee Chairman John L. McClellan, D-Ark., announced that further transcripts may not be released until Monday. He gave no reason.

McNamara went before the committee at his own request to defend his decision to award the TFX contract to General Dynamics Corp. of Fort Worth, Tex. He arrived with suitcases of data including a statement giving his own net worth—$1,278,200, mostly in common stocks and bonds.

The Defense Department said McNamara had the statement put together "because of newspaper reports that the committee's investigating staff is examining possible self-interest on the part of Pentagon officials in the award of the TFX contract."

The $24 million contract covers start of work on the aircraft, an all-purpose fighter-bomber for the Air Force and Navy. Eventually 1,700 of the planes will be built at an estimated cost of $6.5 billion.

McNamara has charged that the investigation is undermining the nation's confidence in the Pentagon leaders. Anonymous Pentagon spokesmen have also criticized it as unfair and politically motivated. The subcommittee members have denounced the charges.

In an earlier statement to the subcommittee McNamara defended the TFX contract, saying General Dynamics' design was selected over one offered by the Boeing Co. of Seattle, Wash., because it would use more of the same components for both Air Force and Navy versions of the plane, thus saving more money.

Trying to Keep the Heat Down

By JAMES MARLOW

Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP)—It snowed in the Washington area in the morning. Then it was cool all day. President Kennedy let it stay that way.

For two years Kennedy, like President Eisenhower before him, has been using a kind of verbal fire extinguisher to keep the heat down.

This doesn't make for lively news conferences but it helps the President avoid fights.

At his news conference Thursday night Kennedy didn't irritate anyone except perhaps Fidel Castro.

Much of the conference was based on hope, a word that ran all through it.

Kennedy said he hoped more Russians would leave Cuba; that he could visit Berlin when he visits West Germany; that the New York newspaper strike will end soon, and that a NATO nuclear force can be established in Europe.

The President declined an excellent chance to get embroiled with his old friends in Congress when asked how he felt about the Senate investigation of the TFX fighter plane contract.

This contract, with the approval of Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, went to the General Dynamics Corp. instead of the low bidder, Boeing Co. in Seattle Wash. About $6.5 billion are involved.

McNamara was asked how come by a committee headed by Sen. John McClellan, D-Ark. McNamara said it saved the government money. This didn't satisfy the committee. It went on digging.

McNamara said this was undermining morale in the Pentagon. And Thursday Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., not only agreed with him but backed him. Kennedy was completely non-inflammatory. He said he thought McNamara was a fine secretary and had done the right thing. He also said the investigation was not only all right but would find McNamara was, too.

In Korea the military rulers, to the displeasure of Koreans who want elections and civilian rule, indicated a desire to stay in.

Kennedy May Visit Berlin

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy was reported today to be considering a visit to West Berlin on his trip to Europe next summer.

Authoritative sources said the State Department has advised the White House that the President should go to the Communist encircled city after he visits Bonn, but no decision has been made.

According to tentative plans, Kennedy will go to Europe June 13-27.

He agreed first to visit Rome when Amintore Fanfani, the Italian prime minister, visited Washington last January. Subsequently it was announced that he will go also to Bonn, the West German capital.

charge another four years.

This is a sore subject, particularly since Koreans remember the United States supported the dictatorship of President Syngman Rhee before he was tossed out.

Kennedy was asked his views on the situation now. He said conditions there now are "in flux" and he doubted "anything I would say on it would be helpful, at least this week."

If this disappointed the Korean civilians at least Kennedy didn't back the army officers, either.

Last Dec. 29 Kennedy went to Miami to address members of the Cuban brigade ransomed from Castro's prisons where they had lain since their futile Bay of Pigs invasion in 1961.

While making no provisions of U.S. armed invasion of Cuba, the President urged a wildly cheering crowd of refugees to prepare for the day of freedom.

He didn't say how to prepare. And he didn't say how the freedom was to be achieved. Nor has any other government official since then explained it.

And this week two things happened which did not add to enlightenment on the problem of how to get rid of Castro:

1. The State Department said the refugees couldn't use American bases for hit-and-run raids on Castro's domain.

2. Kennedy and six Latin-American presidents, meeting in Costa Rica, issued a statement which said they "had no doubt" Cuba would be freed from communism.

Since this statement didn't say how, either, Kennedy was asked Thursday what it meant.

He said "I think the strong conviction is that the people of Latin America want to be free."

Thursday's was not one of the most exciting news conferences in recent years.

Finally Learned What Was Wrong

MANKATO, Minn. (AP)—Steve Brown, 19, a freshman at Mankato State College, had stomach cramps for six weeks after a toboggan accident, but not until last weekend did he learn the cause.

He had been to the doctor several times without relief. Last weekend, he went again.

The doctor probed a wound in his bottom and found a bit of wood. He pulled, and pulled some more, and finally retrieved a 10-inch splinter.

The doctor said the piece of wood from the toboggan slipped through a notch in the pelvis and worked into the youth's back without touching any vital organs.

"Perhaps I'll frame it," said Brown, marveling at the size of the splinter.

Cities Dropped From Concert

JEKYLL ISLAND, Ga. (AP)—Nine Southern cities have been dropped from a concert tour by the Army field band and soldiers chorus because there was no assurance that audiences would be integrated.

The 93 musicians, at a motel at this Georgia coastal resort, en route to Jacksonville, Fla., for a concert, learned of the change while watching a television newscast.

The Army announced in Washington earlier that planned appearances had been canceled at Greenville, Charleston and Columbia, S.C.; Savannah, Ga.; Montgomery, Ala.; and Hattiesburg, Vicksburg, Clinton and Meridian, Miss.

"Army policy requires that the U.S. Army field band perform in public before audiences that are seated on a desegregated basis," the announcement said.

ONE WHO KNOWS THE OTHER SIDE OF LIFE

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen: This is being written for the benefit of the 18-year-old girl who signed herself, "Someone Who Knows." She said she had too much too soon; a fancy car, charge accounts at all the big stores, a private income of her own. She and the boy she dated were in a "sinful rut" to use her phrase, but lacked the will to pull themselves out.

Still, she insisted, she had everything. All, I say, but the main things: happiness and peace of heart.

My story is the other side of life. I was desperately poor. The clothes I wore were hand-me-downs from people who no longer wanted them. The first money I saw I earned when I went to work at 16 to help my parents.

They were the puritanical, old-fashioned sort. I never dated, went to parties or knew what a good time was until years later. All I did was work in the day, go to school at night, trying to make something of myself and keep our family together.

Many a night, after the house was quiet, I would lie awake thinking. Why were things so hard? Why couldn't I enjoy life as other girls my age did? There must be some reason.

During those midnight hours of reflection it suddenly came to me. The chance to help my parents was a privilege. The experience was equipping me for life. It qualified me for marriage to as fine a man as ever lived. We have three wonderful children and are as happy as the day is long. My oldest daughter, now in her twenties, is just as happy as I. If that 18-year-old girl who had "everything" could pray for guidance and perhaps give time and money to helping others she would find happiness too.

As I write this I am reminded of the prisoner who, after ten years behind bars, found that "happiness is just a prayer away," and wrote a song with that title. The solitude gave him time to think, to find himself—that is the Christ within him, which is in us all. —Someone Who saw his shoulders turn toward her, his arms creep along the back of the seat.

"Listen, Nancy, I'm only human. I'm crazy about you. You've known that. Do you think any man can be with you for long and be content with a pleasant how-do-you-do and a handshake? I've played the big brother long enough. Now be really smart, Nancy. Let's go on from here. You're a modern girl, you're on your own, responsible to nobody. I could have told Miss Hanniman where you were that night and I didn't. I expect you to play square with me. You spent the night with Anders."

His voice scraped her to the bone, set every nerve in her body on edge. "How could you know that?"

"The hospital time sheets. It seems to me that what's good enough for Anders is good enough for me."

"It hasn't occurred to you that I might be married to David Anders?"

"Married?" he cried. Nancy was fumbling in her purse for her compact. In the dark she found it, spilled the powder into the bag and wiped off the ring. "Here," she said, "look at this."

"Everything right and proper — eh? Marriage certificate in your purse?"

"No. Look at it."

He turned up the dashboard light and took the ring from her, examining it closely, methodically until he found the inscription inside — D.A. to G.S., June 1, 1928.

"It was his mother's," Nancy said with great dignity.

Thorne returned the ring, snapped out the light, and turned the car toward the city.

"I'm sorry, Tony. Believe me, I'm sorry I asked you to do it. I'm not slick or smart, I'm in love. I considered you a friend, and turned to you for help. If I'd thought the thing through clearly, I'd have taken the consequences. David doesn't know. I — I couldn't tell him. If you want to go to Miss Hanniman —"

"I'll make no promises one way or the other. It's a neat situation. Very neat."

By Monday, Cornish had left for Canada and Dr. Grimaldo, the assistant chief of medicine, was in charge of the medical service. Dr. Grimaldo was not in any way connected with Cornish's office nor had he ever been, but he was a fine man doing a splendid work among his own people. Short, stocky, dark, he had a bluff hearty way with patients. Nevertheless, David missed Dr. Cornish. Nothing could be quite right with Cornish gone.

However perfect the routine appeared to be, David kept expecting, against all common sense, that something dire would happen.

And by Monday Nancy was determined that she and David must have a talk on Thursday. Dr. Billings, the General Director, had already sent a notice requesting all men to curtail their free time for the present.

Two persons knew, and out of all the world those two had to be Rhoda Bascomb and Anthony Thorne, both of them disappointed in their own plans.

"Penn Station at eight o'clock," David whispered to Nancy Thursday morning, misery in the suggestion. Penn Station. A railroad waiting room. He had done something delightful, but impractical with his June check, drawn a week in advance on the day Nancy had met Thorne. Now he called himself 18 varieties of fool, for it was pouring, and he might have saved the money to buy a little privacy and comfort for Nancy, instead of a luxury.

Chapter XXX

She was there ahead of him. He picked out her plastic coat, and noticed at once that the storm had slashed it. Her dress beneath was damp, and so he made her take off the coat; before he kissed her. Her face was flushed, very warm with a sort of dry inner heat after her dash through the rain.

They sat down on one of the long wooden benches in a corner. "I brought you something, darling." He took it out of his pocket and shielded her from view, slipped it on her finger. "It's our own, Nancy. I wanted you to have one bought especially for you."

"A wedding ring? Davey! It's perfectly. How could you know the size?"

"By the touch of your hand."

She let her hand rest in his, palm to palm, while she admired the ring, a magic circlet of platinum, a thin wreath of orange blossoms engraved in such fashion that the light, in striking their centers, transformed them to sparkling jewels. Her wedding ring, all hers, to be worn forever on her finger as a symbol of David's everlasting love. No — to be hidden in some dark, airless, secret place where nobody would see.

"Davey, this can't go on."

"I should say not. I don't intend to buy you a wedding ring every month."

For a span of seconds their voices blended merrily. Then at the same instant, laughter faded and his eyes plumbed her heart.

"We can't go on sneaking in corners, Davey, hiding, evading the truth. We're not fooling anybody — only cheating ourselves by something precious."

His gaze faltered. He turned away and ran his fingers through his wet hair. He had come out bareheaded.

"I know, Nancy," he said. "I've been thinking the same way. We're losing something."

"I'm afraid, Davey. Somebody knows."

"Who? How could anyone know?"

"Rhoda Bascomb. She came to see me one day. . . . Carefully she omitted the implication that David had made love to Rhoda."

for she was carrying a guilt of her own.

David burst out furiously. "I didn't tell her I was married. I said I wasn't free to marry — that's all. I know the precise words I used, because they worried me afterwards."

"You've seen her since our marriage?" Nancy gasped. "You might have told me. I told you I was going to see Tony."

So David had seen Rhoda. So he had made love to her after — after their marriage. It wasn't at all in keeping with Nancy's concept of David's character. This wasn't at all her David. Yet it was David. How could he do this? Nancy couldn't imagine anyone but David touching her in love and desire.

"I couldn't help it!" David was no integral part of his nature and much as he had disliked telling anybody, even Nancy, that a girl had asked him to marry her, he nevertheless repeated his story. "So you see, she doesn't know, Nancy. She only suspects."

"You're splitting hairs because you want it that way. She knows! Besides, somebody else does too. Tony Thorne."

"Did Rhoda talk to him, do you think?"

"No, I told him. There wasn't any other way out. I had to — in self-protection, and it wasn't easy."

David seized her by the shoulders. "Did he get nasty with you?"

"No — no."

"If he opens his mouth, I'll brain him."

Nancy thought David's voler had receded. "That's what I'm afraid of, don't you see? I've been waiting for him to do something, and waiting is terrible. Davey — I want you to go to Miss Hanniman tomorrow and tell her everything."

"Miss Hanniman? Do you know what that means?"

"I don't care. I want to get out of this mess. I can't hear it, Davey."

"I thought we agreed that Dr. Cornish was to be the first to know."

She wasn't quite aware of the transformation that was taking place in her. All she could think of was that after their marriage, after everything that had happened to the two of them, he had seen Rhoda.

Words came out of her in a cascade. "I'm not going to throw myself at your head again, David. I knew all the time you were thinking only of yourself and your career, but I wanted to think you loved me, but I'm sick of the whole thing now. You don't even have to announce our marriage. I'll deny it if you do. I can keep Tony Thorne quiet — I know how. Take your job, with Cornish. I'll not bother you — ever."

He had been sitting hunched before her bitter emotion, his head between his hands. When her voice was abruptly choked off, he looked up — to nothing — to emptiness. Her splashed and tattered plastic coat lay beside him.

Pearson Is Swinging That Bat

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Albie Pearson, the littlest Angel of them all, looks like he's over-matched every time he picks up a baseball bat. The way Pearson's been swinging lately, the bat must feel like a baton.

Pearson, 27, who stands just over 5-foot-5 1/2 and weighs in at 141 pounds after eating, whipped the bat around at the Los Angeles camp again Thursday, leading the Angels to their seventh consecutive exhibition victory, 5-3 over San Francisco at Palm Springs, Calif. He stroked three hits, one a triple. Pearson also stole two bases, which brought quick smiles from Manager Bill Rigney.

The world champion New York Yankees had just finished their game with Washington on the other side of the country in Florida. The teams played to a 7-7, 17-inning tie in a 4-hour, 25-minute marathon at Pompano Beach.

In two other extra inning affairs, Pittsburgh handed Minnesota its fifth loss in a row, 5-4 in 10 innings at Fort Myers and the New York Mets used Charlie Neal's sacrifice fly in the 10th for a 2-1 triumph over Milwaukee at West Palm Beach.

Elsewhere, Al Kaline hit two homers as Detroit crushed Baltimore 11-1 at Lakeland. Cincinnati's Tommy Harper hit a pair in the Reds' 7-6 squeaker over the Chicago White Sox at Sarasota. St. Louis whipped Kansas City 6-1 at St. Petersburg. Cleveland checked the Chicago Cubs 7-2 at Mesa, Ariz. Philadelphia defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 8-7 at Clearwater, Fla. and Boston edged Houston 4-3 at Scottsdale, Ariz.

Plant Abandons NLR Location

NORTH LITTLE ROCK (AP)—An official of a Green Bay, Wis., paper company said today his firm had decided against North Little Rock as a site for a new paper mill.

J. E. Barnhart, director of engineering of the Green Bay Paper & Pulp Division of the Green Bay Packaging Co., said a premature news leak and "adverse publicity" may have cost the city consideration by the company.

"It isn't our company that will be hurt, it's the people of North Little Rock," he said.

He said officials of North Little Rock heard his company was looking for a site and took the initiative in negotiations for a location in the Maumelle Industrial Area.

North Little Rock garden clubs led opposition to the plant because of the odor that accompanies paper mills.

Turtle Who Treed Wildcat Is Contender

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—A Turtle who treed a Wildcat is the newest—and perhaps most improbable—member of the National Invitation Tournament's starting ranks.

And the harrassing Bob Pat Turtle, barely recovered from a broken ankle did on hot-shooting Wally Jones of the Villanova Wildcats has to be the key reason Canisius is in Saturday's championship game in the 26th annual basketball classic.

With Jones going without a point in the last 16 minutes, the Griffins steamed past Villanova 61-48 Thursday night before a packed house of 18,429 at Madison Square Garden and gained the final along with Providence.

Past-firing Ray Flynn again paced the Providence Friars, sparking a second-half burst that powered them over Marquette 70-64 in the first match of the semifinal doubleheader.

Turtle, a 5-foot-11 Canisius senior who suffered a right ankle fracture in practice Feb. 5, was sidelined from then until this past Tuesday night when he played very briefly in the Griffins' 76-67 quarter-final victory over Memphis State. He went in against Jones after the tricky Wildcat had scored 24 points, with Villanova ahead 35-31 and 16 minutes to go.

With Turtle putting a shell around Jones, Villanova's offense floundered and the inspired Griffins rolled. They exploded out of a 40-40 tie at the midway mark of the second half, getting fine scoring from Bill O'Connor, Tony Gennari and sub Frank Swiatek, and smothered the Wildcats 21-6 over the last 10 minutes.

Flynn poured in 13 of Providence's 16 points and set up another basket with a steal during a second half surge as the Friars won their 14th straight.

Housing Unit

WALDRON, Ark. (AP)—The Texarkana Construction Co. of Texarkana has submitted an apparent low bid of $325,643 to build a 32-unit low-rent public housing project here. There were four other bidders. The Waldron Housing Authority has taken the bids under advisement.

Helena May Get on a Highway

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—If plans of the state Highway Commission are accepted, Helena will be on a U.S. numbered highway for the first time.

The commission has recommended that U.S. Highway 49, from Gulfport to Clarksdale, Miss. be extended northward to Brinkley by a renumbering of highways. This would mean more traffic for the Helena bridge.

The Mississippi Highway Commission originated the proposal and the Arkansas commission joined in the request at its meeting Wednesday.

The proposal will be submitted to the Route Numbering Committee of the American Association of State Highway Officials.

Bobcats Set New Records At Camden

By CARTER HARDAGE
Hope Star Sportswriter

While setting four new records for their home school, the Hope track team came in third in a six-way meet at Camden. The winning team was Texarkana, Arkansas with 74 1/2 points. Camden had 70 1/2, Hope 43 1/2, Fairview 23 1/2, Fordyce 19, and Hampton 12.

The scoring was 10-6-4-2 for the relays and 5-3-2-1 and 3-2-1-1/2 for the runs.

Mutt Wassell bettered the old 18.4 record for the 120 high hurdles with 17.0. Billy Aldridge, Jacky Russell, Jabo Horton, and Roy Wray made up the 880 relay team that set a new record for Hope High at 1:35.8. Jacky Russell made a new low of 2:06.1 in the 880 run, and Johnny Samuels went 19 feet, 2 inches to set a new broad jump record. Although the rest didn't set records, Hope made a fine show all around. Horton had a fine 53.5 for the 440, and Barber had a 2:11.7 in the 880. Hope is looking forward to returning to Camden next week and really setting some good marks.

What's Your Story?

... what? You haven't written one? Then you'll be surprised to know that you write a line every day. God laid clean white pages before you and challenged you to give an accounting of your days on earth... one by one. What you write may embarrass you or it may make for happiness. One fact is sure. It becomes a permanent record. Every day comes from God. He offers us new opportunities with the dawn of each new day... opportunities to write with integrity and trust and genuine goodness. What will you write today? Were you a blessing to another? Did you attend church this week? Have you helped the poor? What are you writing? What's Your Story???

So They May See == 1 Corinthians 13 == So They May Hear

THOUGH I SPEAK with the tongues of men and of angels, and have not charity, I am become as sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal.

2. And though I have the gift of prophecy, and understand all mysteries, and all knowledge; and though I have all faith, so that I could remove mountains, and have not charity, I am nothing.

3. And though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and though I give my body to be burned, and have not charity, it profiteth me nothing.

4. Charity suffereth long, and is kind; charity envieth not; charity vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up,

5. Doth not behave itself unseemly, seeketh not her own, is not easily provoked, thinketh no evil;

6. Rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth in the truth;

7. Beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things.

CHARITY NEVER FAILETH: but whether there be prophecies, they shall fail; whether there be tongues, they shall cease; whether there be knowledge, it shall vanish away.

9. For we know in part, and we prophesy in part.

10. But when that which is perfect is come, then that which is in part shall be done away.

11. When I was a child, I spake as a child, I understood as a child, I thought as a child: but when I became a man, I put away childish things.

12. For now we see through a glass, darkly; but then face to face: now I know in part; but then shall I know even as also I am known.

13. And now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity.
